

Adult Learner Day in Captiva Literacy Coalition of Florida Conference

On Wednesday, March 10, an excited group of students from the Adult Education Center and the Delray Full Service Center headed to Captiva Island to participate in “Adult Learner Day” organized by the Literacy Coalition of Florida as part of their annual conference. AEC student Alena Khadakova kicked off the conference by reading her essay “Once You Move,” which was followed by keynote speaker Barbara Oakley, author and co-creator of “Learning How to Learn” one of the world’s most popular online courses.

At the conference students participated in concurrent sessions on immigration issues, student advocacy, and fun collaborative activities. They also had the opportunity to read their essays to one another and share life and school experiences in a large group setting. Student attendees were writers in this year’s adult learner essay book Moving Forward. Students from the Adult Education Center contributed 46 essays to this year’s anthology. Congratulations to all students who participated in this beloved and worthy project!
